

Giving Games Illustration

You'll need a pencil and paper for this game. One person should volunteer to go first. At the top of the paper, have person number 1 write down one nice thing a person can do for someone else (example: "I can make cookies for my neighbor"). Don't let anyone else see the phrase.

Person number 1 then passes the paper to their right. Person number 2 will read the phrase then fold the paper over so no one else can read what is written. Person number 2 then gets 1 minute to draw a picture that depicts the phrase.

Person number 2 then passes the paper to their right. Person number 3 looks at the picture and writes down what they believe the original phrase was. This pattern of writing and drawing continues until the paper goes all the way around the table and ends up back in front of person number 1.

AN EXAMPLE WITH FIVE PEOPLE

Person #1

Write down an act of kindness:

I can donate food to a food pantry.

Person #2

See what Person #1 wrote? Make it into a drawing:

Person #3

See what Person #2 drew? Write what you think their drawing means:

I can help Mom with cooking

Person #4

See what Person #3 wrote? Make it into a drawing:

Person #5

See what Person #4 drew? Write what you think their drawing means:

I CAN SERVE AT A SOUP KITCHEN.